UTOPIA - DYNAMIC RESTAURANT MENU

Guest flow, three service moments

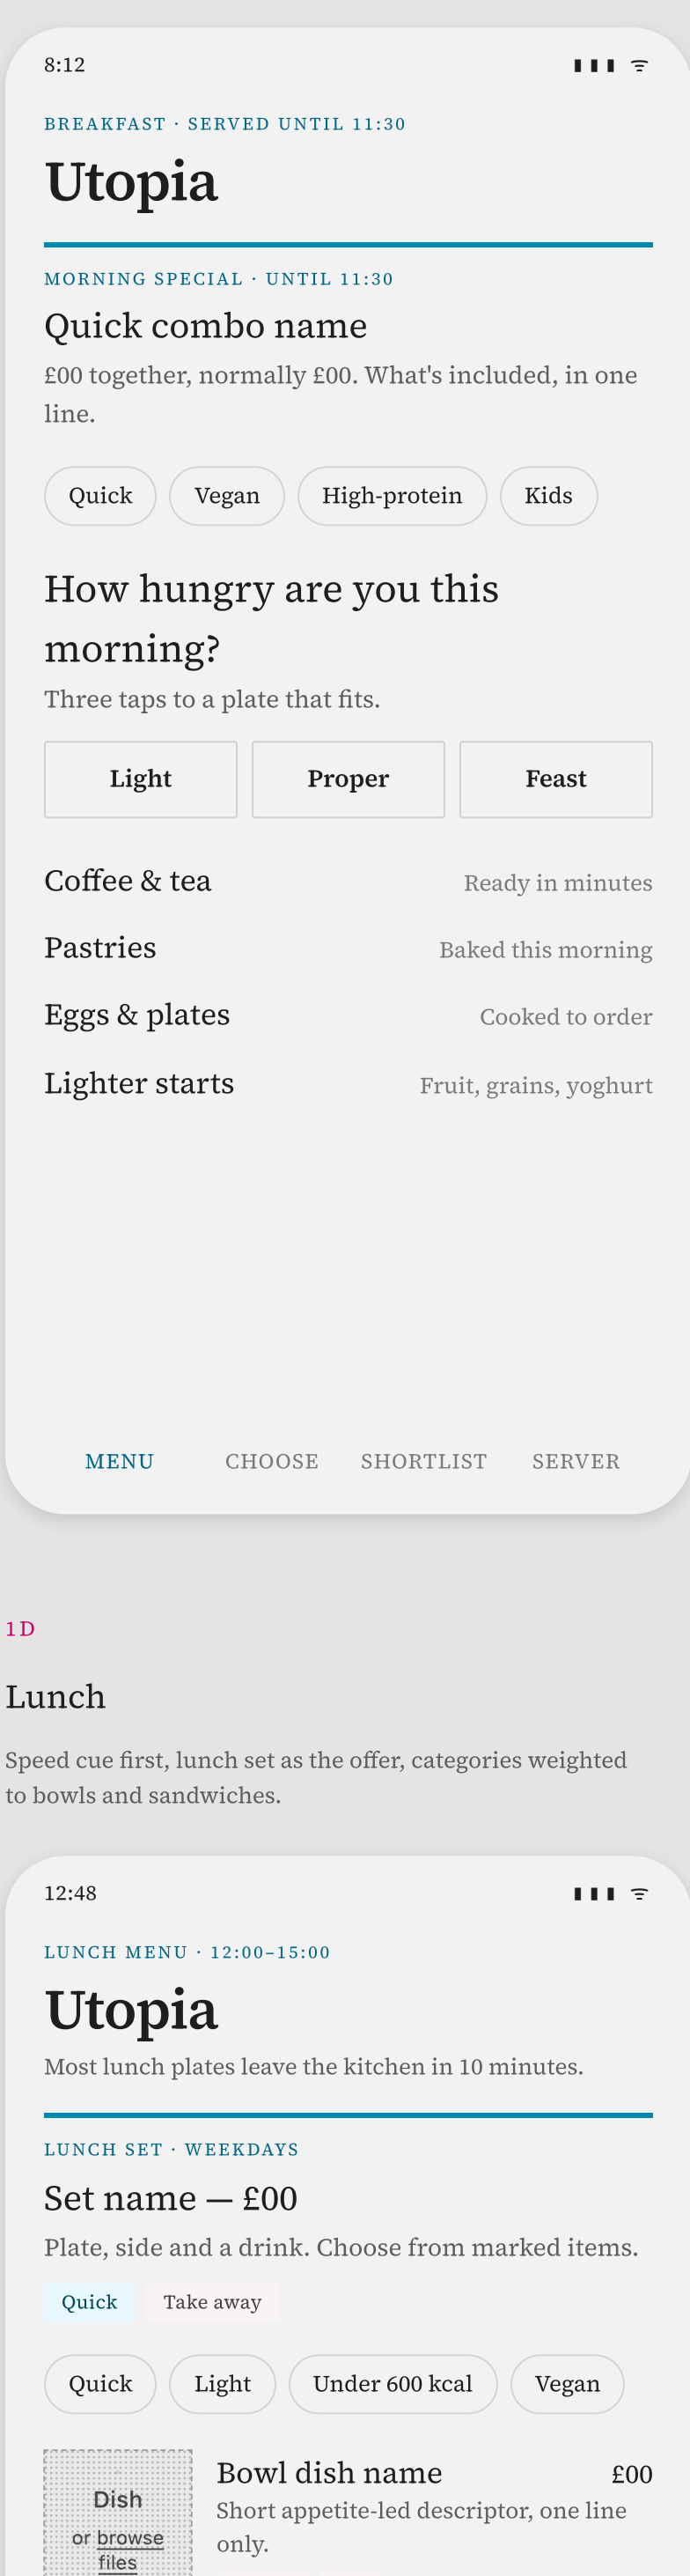

Two directions for the scan-and-land screen (1a, 1b), then the shared flow: filter, item detail, Find my plate, Mood cards, shortlist and the offer states. Menu content is placeholder — dish names, prices and descriptors come from the restaurant's own materials. Drop photographs onto any image area.

LANDING DIRECTIONS

1 A

Editorial feature

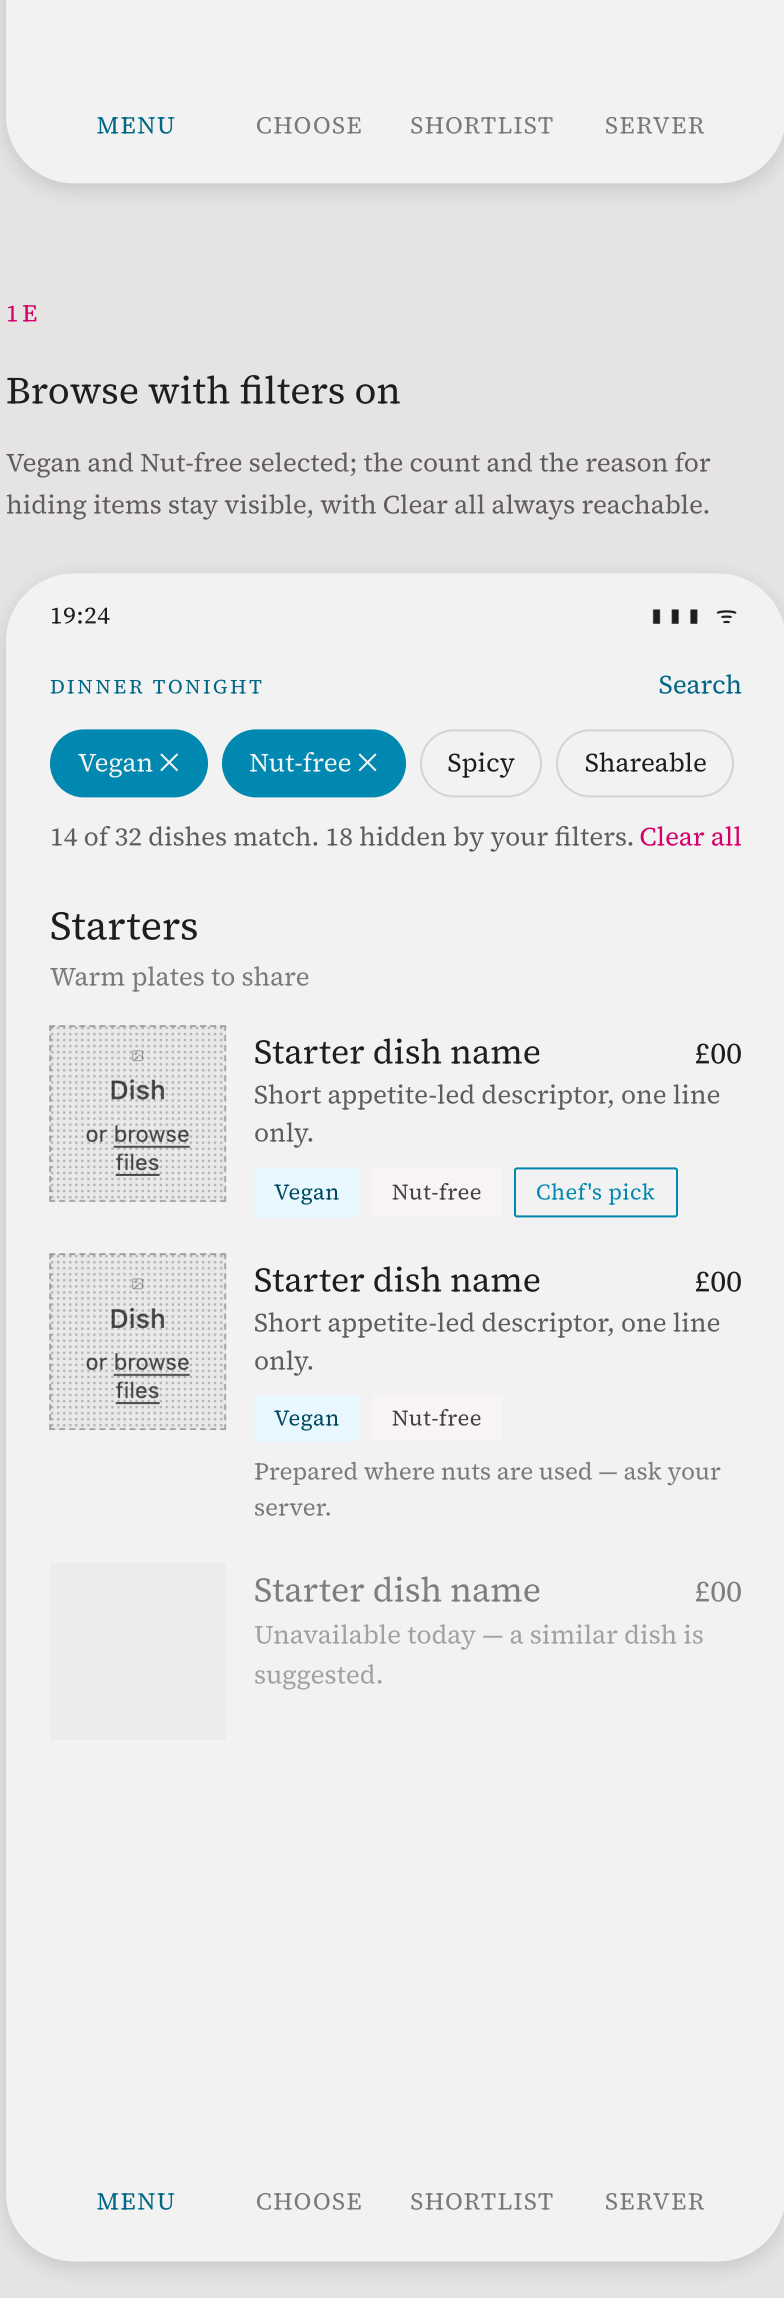

The seasonal feature carries the screen as a photograph printed to plate. Service moment sits in the dateline above the name.

1 B

Front-page index

Thick thin head with a dateline rail; the offer prints as a line of type, and the guest sees the whole menu index before scrolling.

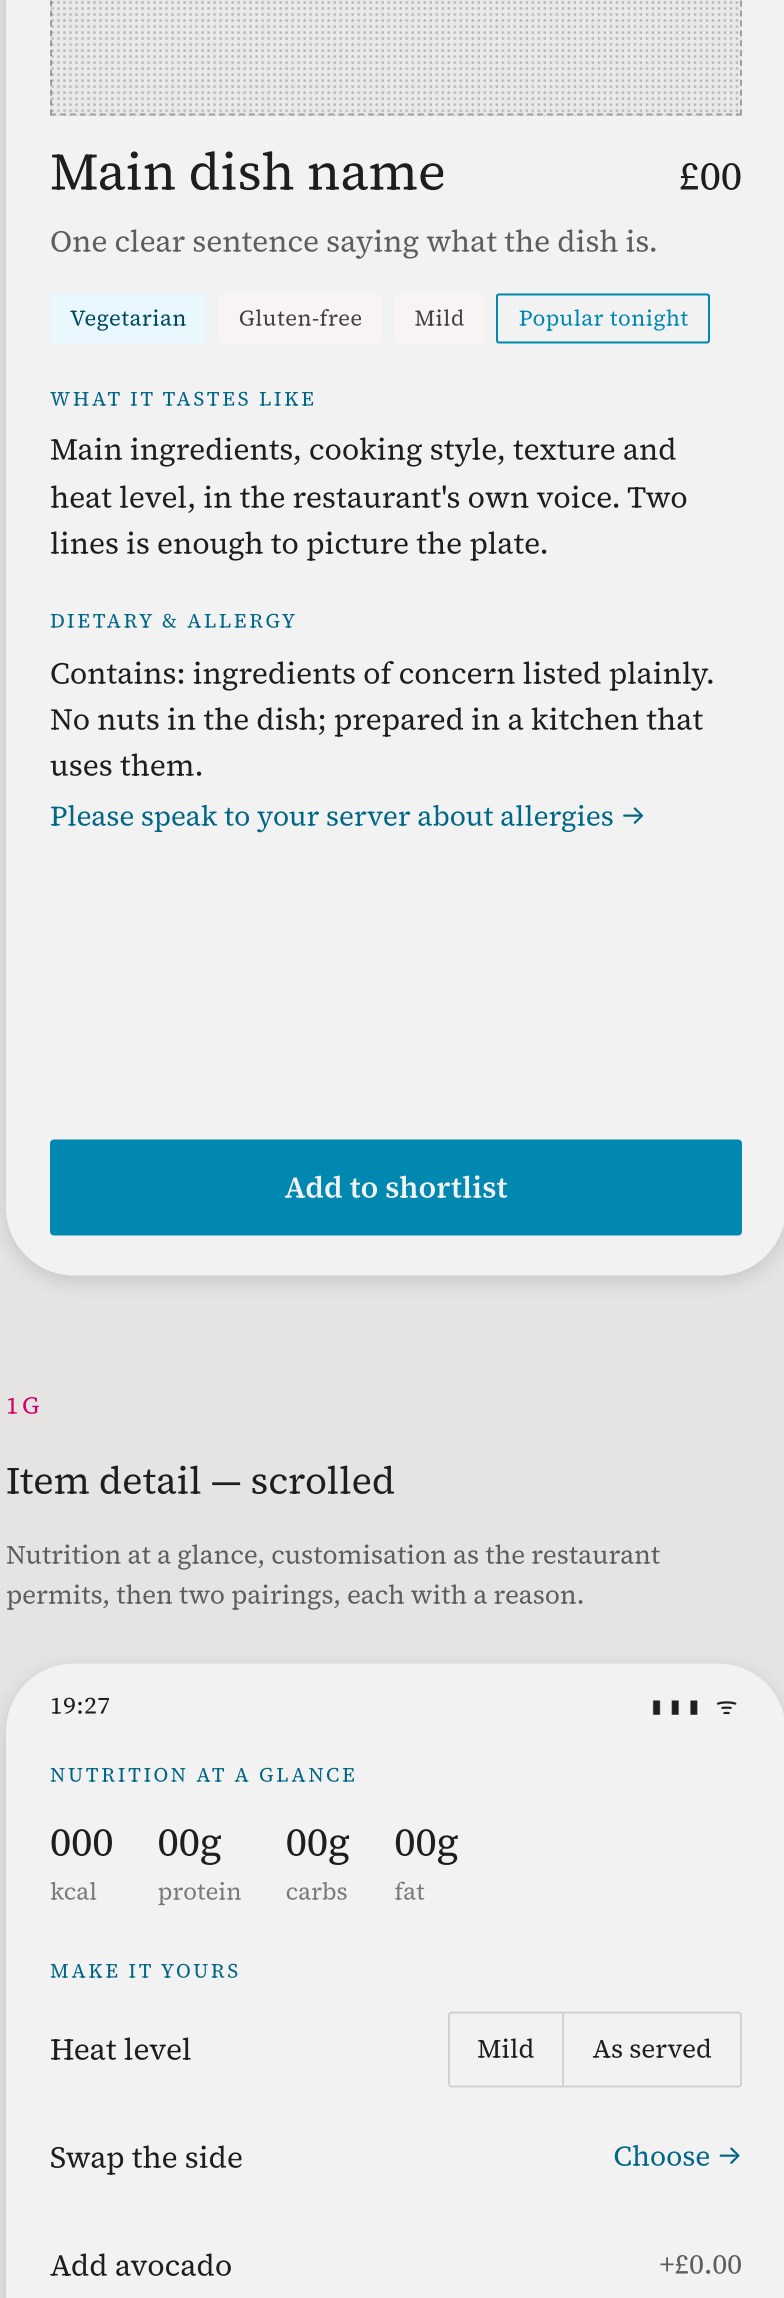

SERVICE MOMENTS

1 C

Breakfast

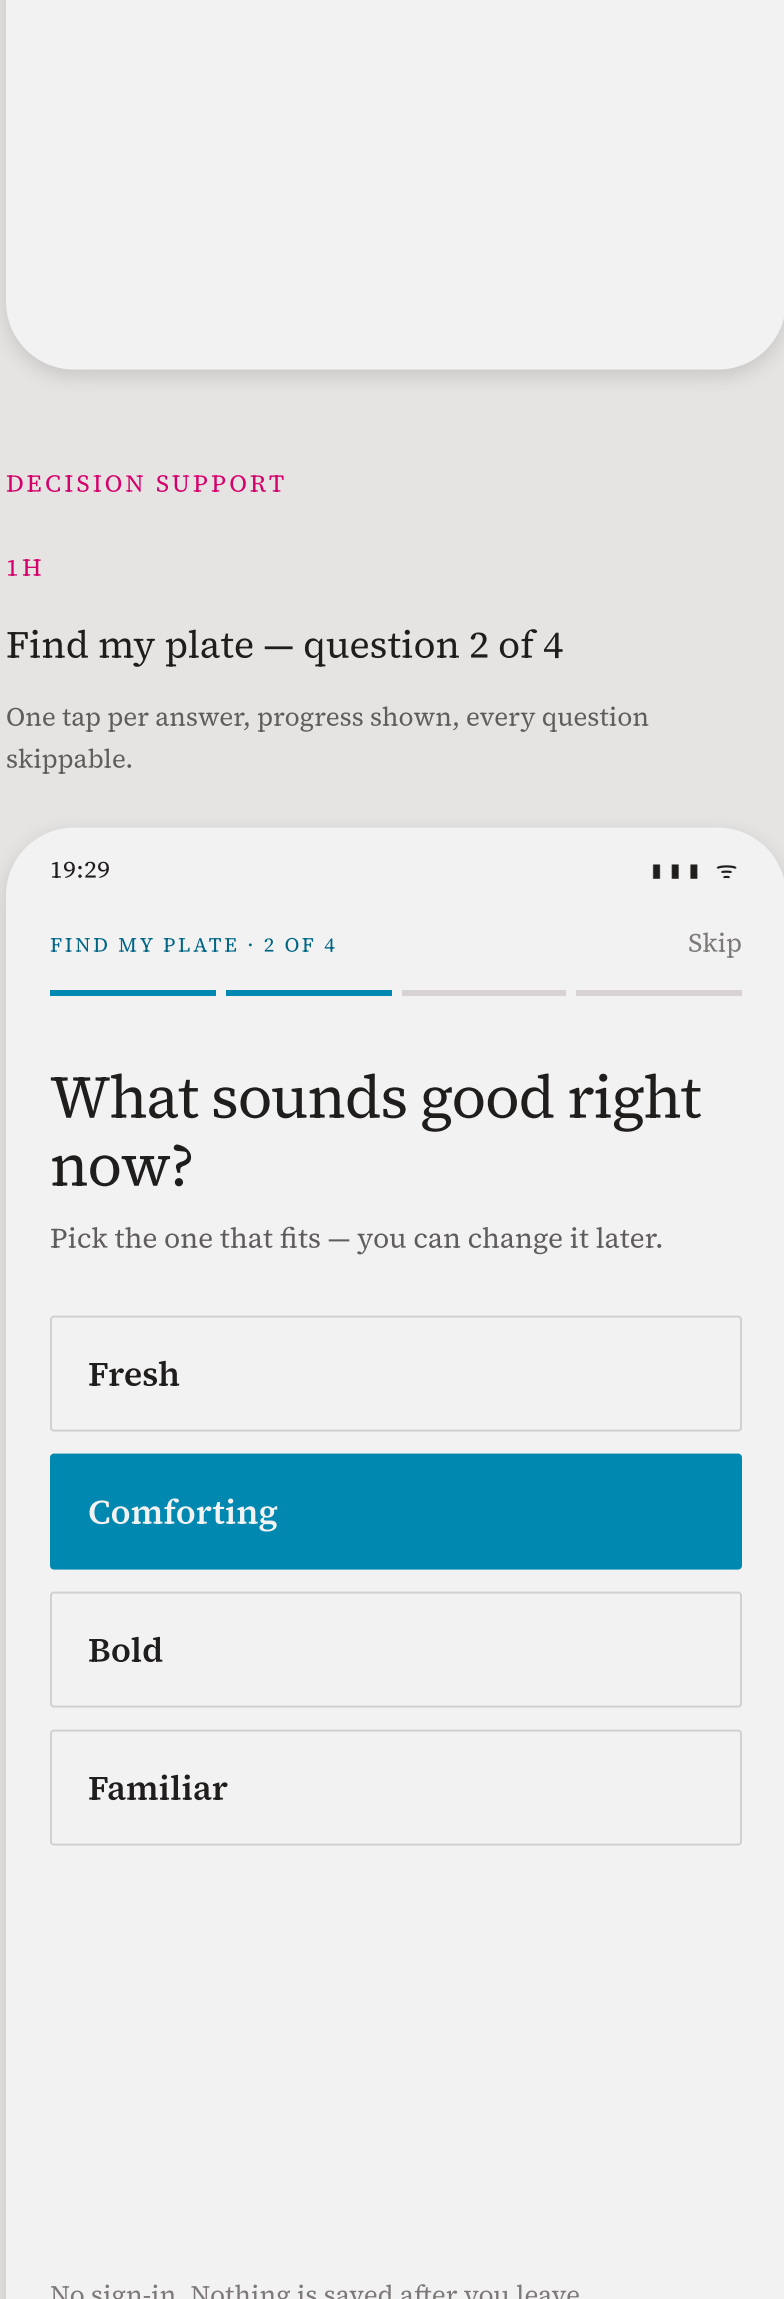

Morning special up top, quick-start categories, prompt asks about appetite.

1 D

Lunch

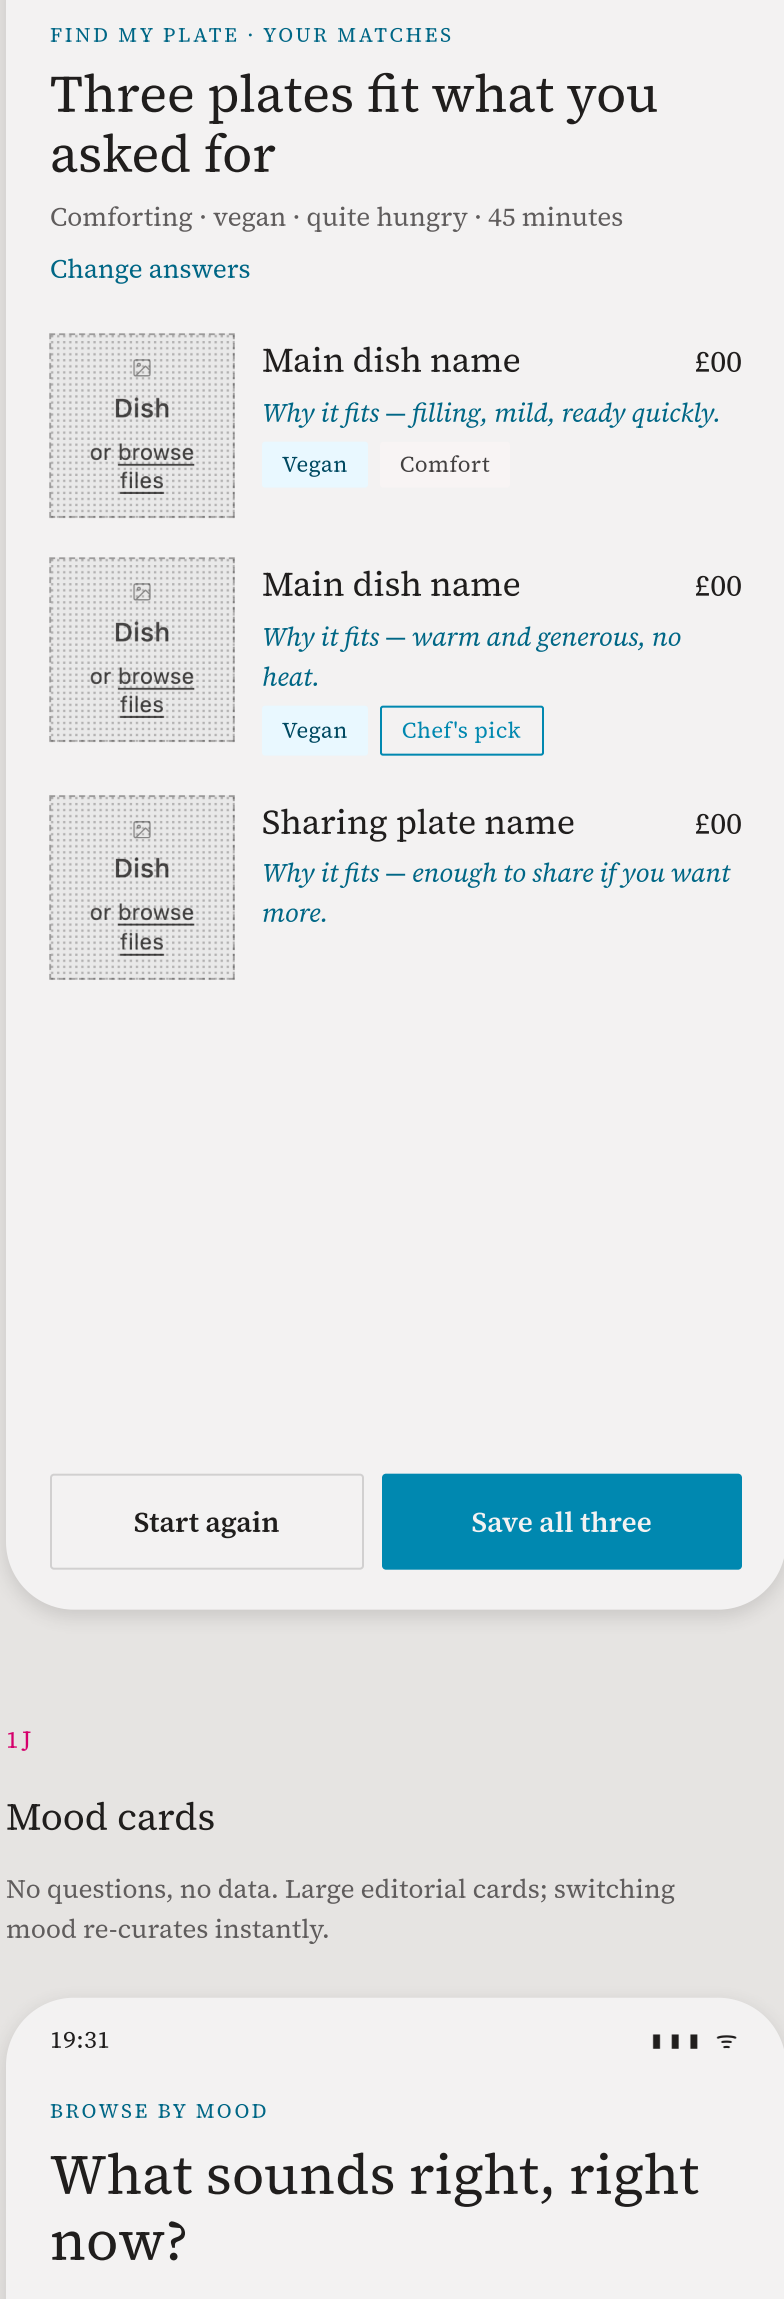

Speed cue first, lunch set as the offer, categories weighted to bowls and sandwiches.

1 E

Browse with filters on

Vegan and Nut-free selected; the count and the reason for hiding items stay visible, with Clear all always reachable.

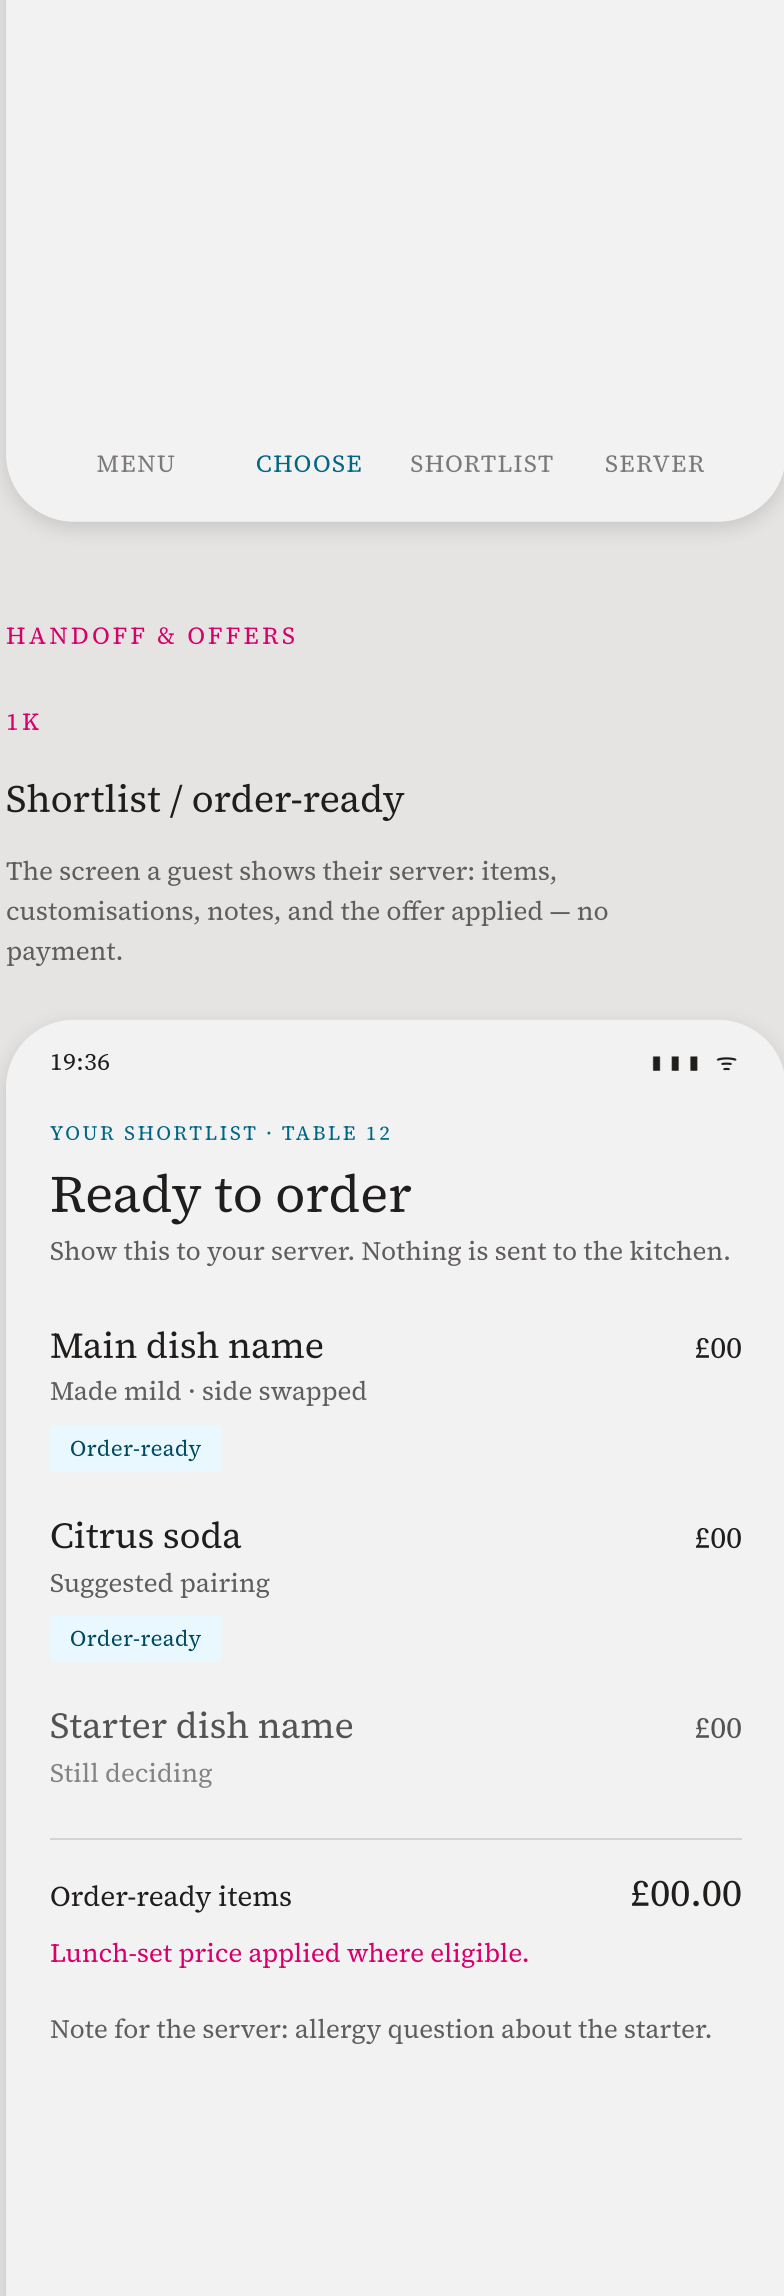

ITEM DETAIL & PAIRINGS

1 F

Item detail — top

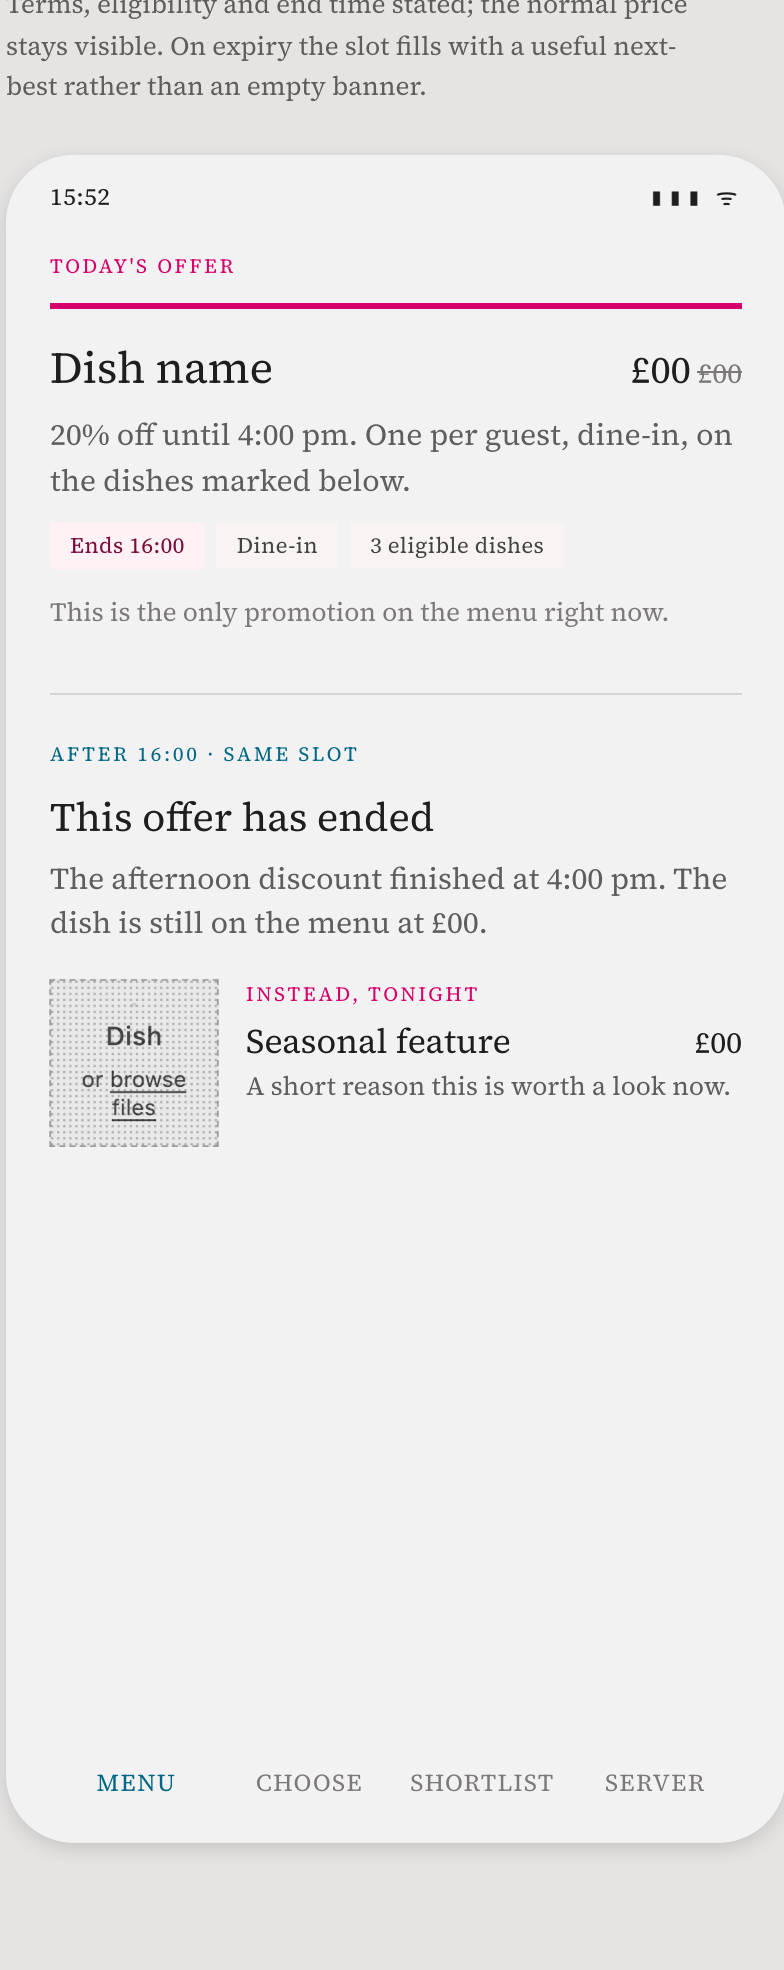

Photograph, name, price, one sentence, then what it tastes like and the allergy conversation.

1 G

Item detail — scrolled

Nutrition at a glance, customisation as the restaurant permits, then two pairings, each with a reason.

DECISION SUPPORT

1 H

Find my plate — question 2 of 4

One tap per answer, progress shown, every question skippable.

1 I

Find my plate — results

Two to four suggestions, each with a plain-language reason it fits. Answers stay visible and editable.

1 J

Mood cards

No questions, no data. Large editorial cards; switching mood re-curates instantly.

HANDOFF & OFFERS

1 K

Shortlist / order-ready

The screen a guest shows their server: items, customisations, notes, and the offer applied — no payment.

1 L

Offer — active, then expired

Terms, eligibility and end-time stated; the normal price stays visible. On expiry the slot fills with a useful next-best rather than an empty banner.
